

Indonesian Operations Research Association (IORA)

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION

PREAMBLE

It has come to our awareness that the sciences mastered by a nation reflect the intelligence of that nation. Operations research is an applied science with the typical analysis that operations research can master various aspects in an organization by analyzing and breaking down a problem into several parts and analyzing the effects that occur in each part on a modeling basis.

Operations research is not only an independent science but also the main support for various sciences. Indonesian operations research specialists, users and supporters of operations research are obliged to:

1. foster and develop operations research;
2. foster and develop operations research education;
3. increase the role of operations research both its main role and its role as a support for other sciences in order to contribute to improving human resources for the success of the nation and state development based on Pancasila (the state ideology) and the 1945 Constitution.

In order to achieve the above objectives, we as Indonesian operations research specialists, users and enthusiasts establish an association with the following Articles of Association and Bylaws.

CHAPTER I: NAME, DOMICILE, AND DURATION

Article 1
